Lubango – Some 23 people died in the southern Huíla province victims of cholera, from February to the present day, in a total of 598 cases recorded by the local sanitary authorities.

This was said to Angop on Sunday by the chief of department for Public Health and Endemic Disease Control, João Kiala.

He said that most of the deaths were recorded in Lubango district with 14 cases.

João Kiala stated that six patients are admitted this moment in the Centre for Cholera Treatment of Lubango city, all in the favourable recovery phase.
